Jean Héliion, Painting is a Language: Paris, New York, Rockbridge Baths

Jean Héliion (1904-1987) is best known for his early modernist paintings, prints and drawings; his affiliation with important modernist artists working in Europe in the 1920s and 1930s; and being an important intermediary between European and American modernist artists in Paris and New York. Hollins has enjoyed an 80-year association with Héliion, which began in 1943-44, and this exhibit features works from the Eleanor D. Wilson Museum's permanent collection, augmented by artwork from the collection of Louis and Suzanne Blair. The exhibition includes sketches and drawings from Héliion's studio, many of which have never been on public view.
